

Assistant professor or post-doc position, University of Bielefeld, School of Public Health

Our job offer:

The School of Public Health at Bielefeld University, Department of Public Health Medicine, invites young researchers to apply for an assistant professor or post-doc position (3+ years; starting January 1, 2010 or later; E13).

Our Department and Faculty:

The Department of Public Health Medicine has a broad research spectrum with focus e.g. in infectious disease epidemiology, concepts and methods of burden of disease studies, migrant health, prevention and health promotion at the university setting, health in a megacity setting with an international perspective, and the topic of violence and health. We currently participate in 3 large EU-funded research consortia and the priority programme "Megacities" funded by the German Research Council (DFG) (www.uni-bielefeld.de/gesundhw/ag2/index.html).

The inter-disciplinary Bielefeld School of Public Health was founded in 1994 and currently represents with its 8 departments the largest School of Public Health in the German speaking region of Europe (www.uni-bielefeld.de/gesundhw/index.html). It offers the chance for young faculty to address public health research and teaching from a modern multi-disciplinary perspective ("New Public Health").

Your profile:

The applicant should have an educational health sciences background with doctoral degree (MD, MPH, MSc in Epidemiology or related diploma) and experience in the field of public health medicine or epidemiology as demonstrated through peer-reviewed publications. Expertise in grant writing, grant management and teaching experience are desired. German language skills are helpful.

Your application:

University of Bielefeld applies equal opportunities and accepts applications without distinction on the grounds of age, race, political, philosophical or religious conviction, sexual orientation, marital status or family situation. The university strives to increase the proportion of women and people with disabilities in academia. Given equal qualification, women and people with disabilities will therefore be given preference.

Applicants please send the applications including a detailed CV until November 30, 2009, to the Chair of the Department of Public Health Medicine, Prof. Alexander Krämer, MD, PhD, alexander.kraemer@uni-bielefeld.de
